Ron Lauder, the Chairman of Estee Lauder cosmetics, and the president of the Jewish National Fund is a vigorous supporter of illegal Jewish settlements on Palestinian lands. The JNF was formed in 1901 to establish Jewish settlements by purchasing land from absentee landlords. After the state of Israel was formed, the JNF was made responsible for developing lands expropriated by the government, including 531 villages that were destroyed by a campaign of ethnic cleansing by Jewish terrorists. 750,000 Palestinians were expelled or forced to flee in 1948-49. The JNF holds half the seats on the Israel Lands Council, that sets policy for the 93% of Israel's land that is in the public domain. Palestinians, who are 20% of the Israeli population, are generally denied use of this land. The JNF has played a leading role in developing settlements in the occupied territories, and is currently conducting projects that are displacing Bedouin Arabs in the Negev in Israel.
